GIRLS LIGHT OUR WORLD
Glow voice is a group of young girls who recently graduated or still in High School in Kigali, Rwanda and it acts as a platform for girls in High school to freely express themselves, learn new skills as well as giving the young girls the spirit of giving back to the community through volunteering and commemoration activities.
OUR VISION

Glow aims at being a touching stone and source of relatable inspiration to young girls across the nation. In the next five years, Glow aims at having a club across high schools of all regions in Rwanda.

In time not only does Glow aims at having clubs all the country, but Glow aims at having “Glow” ambassadors all over the world who would spread their light that was lit or have burned out. We believe there is nothing stronger than a motivated educated and confident women and that is what Glow aims to bring out in our girls.

There are very many concerning issues facing young women in Rwanda today, we cannot solve all of them but if we educate them, the future policy makers then we have solved these issues for the next generation.
As Glow we target girls that are still in high school because we believe that adolescent age is the moment where they start to define who they are.

According to the GAGE more women are literate than men (88% to 85%) the higher education enrollment of women is higher (53% to 49%) but the employment rate says the opposite with 72% to men and 63% to women.
WHY GLOW

Everything begins from the mind. We believe that if we can change their mindset then we have changed how they perceive the world.
